

CONNELLVILLE BOYS IN FRANCE LIVE ON FINEST THE NATION CAN PRODUCE

No Mother Need Fear for Instant That Son Lacks Food

IS SAME WITH CLOTHING

Assurance Is Conveyed Here From Front By Personal Message.

OUTCOME OF WAR CERTAIN

Acquaintance of Sam Harry Brings Tidings to Father, S. J. Harry, of Eagerness of Men to Get at Hun and of Daring With Which They Fight.

No American mother should for a moment have doubt that her soldier son in France is not getting enough wholesome, well cooked food to eat, plenty of warm, comfortable clothing to wear, or that he lacks anything that will contribute to his physical comfort and well being, no matter how many or how plausible may be the pro-German lies that come to her ears. No American citizen need have forebodings as to what will be the ultimate outcome of the war, or that the boys from Connellsville or any other section of the coke region will not have an honorable part in bringing the struggle to a glorious conclusion. Assurance of these things have been personally conveyed to a citizen of Connellsville by a Pittsburgh business acquaintance who recently returned to America after a visit embracing practically the whole battle area of France and Flanders, during which he spent considerable time in the camps of the American soldiers, shared their mess and quarters, talked intimately with them and obtained first-hand information of conditions that have made him prouder than ever to be an American and still prouder to know that American soldiers have become the standard, in all qualities, by which the fighting men of all other nations are now compared.

The gentleman who had made this visit to the western front yesterday personally delivered to S. J. Harry, the well known contractor, a message sent by his son Samuel, member of the 15th Railway Engineers, which have been in France for nearly a year. Private Harry is well and that such is the state of his health cannot be doubted when it is known that the American soldiers in France are eating better than the guests of the swellest hotels in the great cities of Europe. They have a daily ration of the most wholesome and nourishing food, cooked by experts in their line and served in quantities that satisfy the most ravenous appetites. Butter, sugar and other luxuries absolutely unobtainable in the big hotels and elsewhere are supplied with such regularity that no soldier is ever registered on either the quality or quantity of the "coats."

Next to the extraordinary care and attention given to provisioning the troops, keeping them supplied with warm clothing and looking after their health and individual comfort, the physical condition and the spirit of the soldiers was the most impressive. Mr. Harry's informant could not find arms, he said, that would adequately express the admiration and pride he experienced in watching the men in their several duties. They are drilled to perfection in every detail, and as physically as it would be possible for healthy, vigorous, young men to be, they are ready and willing for any duty but especially eager for a chance to measure their strength and skill against any picked body of Hunns that they want to face them, even though they have been at the business of soldiering fewer months than the Hunns have been at it for years.

In some actions that have taken place the most difficult task of the officers has been to restrain their men, merely moving the Hunns down in the trenches with machine gun and rifle, or driving them headlong to the rear at the point of the bayonet and to the Americans. They want to up the fight as long as there is live German in sight. Several times the Hunns have been rushed behind the limits they were supposed to go, but they were on the trail of a "line" whose "number" they had determined to "get him" most invariably, in such instances, they followed their quarry right into German lines and either brought him back with them as a prisoner or to him where his comrades would not have been able to find him.

The bearer of the message to Mr. Harry says that throughout both the Hun and the British armies there is most enthusiastic admiration for American soldiers. Brave as have been the soldiers of France and England, and brilliant as have been their deeds, it is universally conceded there is a dash, spirit, initiative and determination about the Americans that plainly marks them as the greatest fighters that have yet had part in the war. It is well known throughout the Allied lines that the American soldiers have had

HUNDRED FIFTY MEN REMAINING IN CLASS ONE

Lists For Local Boards Do Not Include the Twenty-ones.

BOARD NO. 5 HAS SIXTY

In District 2 There Are Less Than 100; Reclassification of Married Men Expected to Considerably Increase Number; Whole County Short

Figures given out by the draft boards for District Nos. 2 and 5 show that there are not many draftees left in Class 1, and that two or three more calls will entirely clean out that division. The new registration will add some as well as the law requiring a reclassification of men married after May 18, 1917, but if calls continue to be made it is probable that Class 2 men will be summoned.

After the 37 men are sent to Camp Lee on June 26, Local Board No. 5 will have 60 men left in Class 1. The board has 31 negroes who are also in Class 1, making a total of 91. This number does not include 20 negro slackers and 10 whites that have not appeared. These men are placed in Class 1 on account of their delinquency and are sent to camp immediately on apprehension.

It is estimated that Local Board No. 2 will have less than 100 men in Class 1 after the shipment of June 26. There are also between 40 and 50 colored draftees in that division. To take all these men only two or three more calls will be necessary.

Vacancies in Class 1 will partially be filled by the men secured in the new registration of June 5 and also by the reclassification of married men. Local Board No. 5 expects to secure about 100 men through the reclassification of men who were married after May 18, 1917, and probably 80 from the new registration.

There were 247 men registered by Local Board or District No. 2, and the board will probably get 150 new draftees from that number. No estimate of the number of men who will be secured by the reclassification was made.

This meeting will very likely lead to a series of similar meetings to be held throughout the region as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made and speakers secured.

SENIORS CLASH WITH JUNIORS WHEN 1919 BANNER IS HUNG UP

Graduates Climb Pole and Tear Emblem Away; Struggle Lasts for Ten Minutes.

A brief but hard fought clash occurred last night between members of the junior and senior classes of the high school. The seniors, coming from the school after the commencement exercises, were aroused by the sight of a 1919 banner nailed high up on a telephone pole. When sufficient numbers arrived to "combat" the juniors, the rush was on and a battle royal ensued for a time.

A West Side boy started the offensive for the seniors. Several seniors got a start up the pole only to be pulled back. One valiant youth, very slender but brave, and prominent in the class, did not notice the fighting until he stepped from the school with his best girl. Handling her his diploma in his endeavor to get the banner, up the pole he started. The juniors were easy on him the first time on account of his frail "frame." They eased him gently to the ground, slapped his wrist and told him to run home.

His fighting blood was boiling, however, and he made a second attempt to go up. He did not fare so well the second time. The defenders grasped him by head and feet and with a heave tossed him over a hedge fence. He was out of the fight, but his spirits were high. Though he did not get the banner he had drawn blood. It was on his shirt sleeve, and what did he care if the shirt was a graduation present. The stains were honorable.

With the scrap at its climax three seniors rushed the pole, and a big graduate, one who had been in many a glorious football game for the school, was hoisted up the pole. He got a good hold and bit by bit he destroyed the banner, dropping to the ground amid handclapping and cheers. The banner down, the scrap ended, and juniors and seniors shook hands, friends again.

Awarding of Diplomas at Graduation Exercises Is Notable Event

THE WAR IS UPPERMOST

Address to Class on "Loyalty" Delivered by Charles Thwing.

HONOR STUDENTS STAR

Valedictory Address Is by Lawrence Holcomb, Whose Subject Is "Factors in Winning the War"; Loyalty to the Nation Is Strongly Urged.

Seventy-five members of the class of 1918 received their diplomas at the commencement exercises held in the high school last night. Seated on the stage in caps and gowns, the graduates were addressed by Dr. Charles F. Thwing, president of the Western Reserve University, Cleveland, O. The honor students delivered their addresses and the diplomas were presented by C. Roy Hetzel, president of the school board.

The commencement exercises this year carried a patriotic tone, each of the three honor students speaking on different phases of war and liberty, and Dr. Thwing's subject was "Loyalty." The large auditorium was well filled for the exercises. Music was furnished by Kiefer's orchestra.

At the opening of the exercises the orchestra played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the invocation was delivered by Rev. Ellis B. Burgess. Lawrence Weaver of South Connellsville, honor student in the commercial department, delivered the first address, "Republics, the Ladder to Liberty." His theme was excellent and showed much study. His delivery was good and he spoke in the most interesting way.

Miss Sarah Esther Wert, who took second honors in the academic course, delivered the oration. Her subject was "America's First Year in the War." She gave many interesting statistics and in a well-prepared address showed just what this country had done towards helping the allies in one year. The delivery of the oration was excellent.

The valedictory was delivered by Lawrence Holcomb, who took first honors in winning the War. Holcomb defined food, money, and ships as three essentials which are a big necessity to this country and the allies in defeating Germany. His address was well prepared and very interesting. His subject was one which is being discussed throughout the country, and had been carefully studied out. In behalf of the senior class, the honor graduate then thanked the faculty for what had been done for the class of 1918 in the past four years.

Dr. Thwing urged the graduates to keep loyalty uppermost in their minds. "First be loyal to yourself," he said. "Be loyal to your country, to truth, to duty, and to your thought of self-respect. Be loyal to your ideas and to your home. It is needless for me to say to be loyal to your school."

"Be loyal to your city, also," he continued. "You are citizens of Connellsville, a most impressive city in the world of industry. You owe Connellsville duties and you can best pay what you owe by loyalty and devotion. Be loyal to the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It is a great state to be born in and a great state to live in. Be loyal also to your country, and loyal to the world. Work to better it. More than all these be loyal to your God."

The diplomas were presented by C. Roy Hetzel, president of the school board. The graduates filed past him, receiving the certificate of graduation, and returned to their seats. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. J. L. Proudfoot.

The girls of the graduation class carried no roses this year as has been the custom. On account of the war the dance and banquet were dropped and the girls believed it would also be patriotic to cut expenses by having no roses.

WITNESS BARES LIFE IN MEDIO MURDER TRIAL

Mrs. Sarah Irwin Told Italians She Was of Their Nationality, She Admits.

SAYS SHE DID ANYTHING

They Told Her Because of Fear of Her Life; Witness Relates Removal of Blood Stains From Floor and Door; Declares She Was Held Prisoner.

Further baring the details of her fall, Mrs. Sarah Irwin, alias Mrs. Sarah Wright, star witness in the case of Patsy Medio charged with the murder of Raymond Bartelli at Dawson last December, this morning admitted on cross examination that she had pretended to the Italians, Medio and Bartelli, that she was of Italian parentage. She said she told them that her father was a Frenchman and her mother Italian but that she had been reared by Americans. Her defense was that she told them almost anything because of fear of her life.

Mrs. Irwin was called by the Commonwealth at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and sat on the witness chair continuously until 5:20 o'clock.

On direct examination Mrs. Irwin testified that she went to housekeeping with Bartelli about the middle of November at Dawson and that the relation existed until the first week in December when Bartelli disappeared. She testified that Medio was a frequent visitor at the house and that on the day in question the two left about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and returning a short time later left again at 5 o'clock. When Raymond returned, she testified, he was very pale and threw himself across the bed in the upstairs room. About 15 minutes later, she testified, she heard a noise downstairs and Patsy called for Raymond.

Bartelli got up and went downstairs, she said, and a short time later she heard loud talking. Mrs. Irwin said she took the lamp and went downstairs. Upon opening the stairway door, she said, she saw Raymond sitting on a chair beside the table and at one end of the table Patsy stood over him with a revolver pointed within a few inches of his head.

When she had gone up about three steps back up the stairs by order of Patsy, Medio she heard a door slammed and a moment later a shot fired. She said that she continued on up stairs and sat down on the bed as directed. Some time later, the woman said, Medio and the two other men came up and looking at her declared: "What's the matter, you shaver? And then he laughed. 'I slipped him on the face and he ran down the road like a dog.'"

"About 10 o'clock I heard some one come through the front room," continued Mrs. Irwin in a hushed voice. "Patsy got up and went down stairs. I heard people talking very loud. Then I heard a noise of footsteps going through the empty room. Then all was quiet. Later Patsy came up stairs."

The following morning, Mrs. Irwin testified Patsy got up and took the coffee pot and broom downstairs. The woman said that she remained in bed longer, getting up about noon and went downstairs to the kitchen.

"I saw a clean spot on the floor from under the chair where I had just seen Raymond," the witness declared.

On that day Medio told her, the witness declared, that she was never to go away and that if she did he or some one else would get her.

Precautions taken to prevent Mrs. Irwin from communicating with any person outside the house were related when she told of calling Dr. Harry J. Bell when she was taken sick. The woman testified that while the physician was conducting an examination Medio stood behind him with the fingers of one hand to his lips and the other hand on his gun.

CONNELLSVILLE BOYS IN FRANCE LIVE ON FINEST THE NATION CAN PRODUCE

with the Americans have made them extremely wary of coming in contact with them. It is only when a clash cannot be avoided that the Hun risk an encounter, and then their brag fighting units are selected for the attack or defense as the case may be.

There is everywhere throughout France the feeling that once the American army has attained the strength deemed necessary there will be a reversal in the order of battle and that movement will be started which will eventually crush the Hun army out of existence or force its unconditional surrender. There is little wonder, Mr. Harry's friend says, that Germany, inspired by fear and dread of what the Americans will do to her armies, is making superhuman efforts to break through the lines and annihilate the French and British armies before the Americans are on the ground in full force. But "they shall not pass," was the slogan at Verdun as it is now before Paris. That it is even more effective now than it was in 1915, the French are willing to give large credit to the Americans who, as the Marines about Chateau Thierry have shown, know how to keep the "not" in its place in the historic phrase.

The location of the 15th Engineers is not being revealed, but it is known that they are close enough to the front to hear the roar of battle, waiting as impatiently as other units for the time when the command will be given for them to get into the game. When that time comes they will know where they are going and the Huns will know why they are coming.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable
Compound Restored
Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day.
I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."

—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

"OUTWITTING THE HUN"

by LIEUTENANT PAT O'BRIEN

I could hear the valley of "I told you so's" that greeted her good tidings.

"It would take more than the Kaiser to keep Pat in Germany," I could hear one of them saying.

"Knew he'd be back for Christmas, anyway," I could hear another remark.

"I had an idea that Pat and his comrades might spend Christmas in Berlin," I could hear another admitting, "but I did not think any other part of Germany would appeal to him very much."

"Mrs. O'Brien, did Pat write you how many German prisoners he brought back with him?" I could hear still another credulous friend inquiring.

It was all very amusing and gratifying to me and I must confess I felt quite cocky as I walked into the war department to report.

For the next five days I was kept very busy answering questions put to me by the military authorities regarding what I had observed as to conditions in Germany and behind the lines.

What I reported was taken down by a stenographer and made part of the official records, but I did not give them my story in narrative form. The information I was able to give was naturally of interest to various branches of the service, and experts in every line of government work took it in turns to question me. One morning would be devoted, for instance, to answering questions of a military nature—German methods behind the front line trenches, tactics, morale of troops and similar matters. Then the aviation experts would take a whack at me and discuss with me all I had observed of German flying corps methods and equipment. Then, again, the food experts would interrogate me as to what I had learned of food conditions in Germany, Luxembourg and Belgium, and as I had lived pretty close to the ground for the best part of seventy-two days I was able to give them some fairly accurate reports as to actual agricultural conditions, many of the things I told them probably having more significance to them than they had to me.

There were many things I had observed which I have not referred to in these pages because their value to us might be diminished if the Germans knew we were aware of them, but they were all reported to the authorities and it was very gratifying to me to hear that the experts considered some of them of the greatest value.

One of the most amusing incidents of my return occurred when I called at my bankers in London to get my personal effects.

The practice in the Royal Flying Corps when a pilot is reported missing is to have two of his comrades assigned to go through his belongings, check them over, destroy anything that might not be to his interest to preserve, and send the whole business to his banker or his home, as the case may be. Every letter is read through, but their contents are never afterwards discussed or revealed in any way. If the pilot is finally reported dead, his effects are forwarded to his next of kin, but while he is officially only "missing," or is known to be a prisoner of war, they are kept either at the squadron headquarters or sent to his bankers.

In my case as soon as it was learned that I had fallen from the sky, it was assumed that I had been killed and my chum, Paul Ramsey, and another officer detailed to check over my effects. The list they made out to which they affixed their signatures, as I have previously mentioned, is now in my possession and is one of the most treasured souvenirs of my adventure.

My trunk was sent to Cox & Co. in due course, and now that I was in London I thought I would go and claim it.

When I arrived at the bank I applied to the proper window for my mail and trunk.

"Who are you?" I was asked rather sharply.

"Well, I guess no one has any greater right to Pat O'Brien's effects than I have," I replied, "and I would be obliged to you if you would look them up for me."

"That may be all right, my friend," replied the clerk, "but according to our records Lieutenant O'Brien is a prisoner of war in Germany, and we can't very well turn over his effects to anyone else unless either you present proof that he is dead and that you are his lawful representative, or else deliver to us a properly authenticated order from him to give them to you."

He was very positive about it all, but quite polite, and I thought I would kid him no more.

"Well," I said, "I can't very well present proofs to you that Pat O'Brien is dead, but I will do the best I can to prove to you that he is alive, and if you haven't quite forgotten his signature I guess I can write you out an order that will answer all your requirements and enable you to give me Pat O'Brien's belongings without running any risks," and I scribbled my signature on a scrap of paper and handed it to him.

He looked at me carefully through the latticed window, then jumped down from the high chair and came outside to clasp me by the hand.

"Good heavens, lieutenant!" he exclaimed, as he pumped my hand up and down, "how did you ever get away?" and I had to sit right down and tell him and half a dozen other people in the bank all about my experiences.

I had been in England about five days when I received a telegram which, at first, occasioned me almost as much concern as the unexpected sight of a German spiked helmet had been in Belgium. It read as follows:

"Lieut. P. A. O'Brien, Royal Flying Corps, Regent's Palace Hotel, London: 'The King is very glad to hear of your escape from Germany. If you are to be in London on Friday next, December 7th, His Majesty will receive you at Buckingham Palace at 10:30 a. m. Please acknowledge.'"

"GROGHER."

Of course, there was only one thing to do and that was to obey orders. I was an officer in the army and the King was my commander in chief. I had to go, and so I sat down and sent off the following answer:

"Earl Comer, Buckingham Palace, London: 'I will attend Buckingham Palace as directed, Friday, December 7th, at 10:30.'"

"LIEUT. PAT O'BRIEN."

In the interval that elapsed, I must confess, the ordeal of calling on the king of England loomed up more dreadfully every day, and I really believed I would rather have spent another day in the empty house in the big city in Belgium or, say, two more days at Courtrai, than to go through what I believed to be in store for me. Orders were orders, however, and there was no way of getting out of it. As it turned out, it wasn't half as bad as I had feared—on the contrary, it was one of the most agreeable experiences of my life.

Guns Making Glorious Record.

The gunners of the armed guards on merchantmen have made a record of which we may be justly proud. The contents of the Silver Shell, which went down the submarine which attacked it, of the Moren, on which the men stayed at their guns until the flames flared up to the top of the smokestacks on the burning ship; of the Campana, whose gunners fought for hours until their ammunition was exhausted; of the J. L. Luckenbach, which, though under a rain of shells, hit nine times and temporarily disabled, fought a submarine for four hours, before aid arrived, and later managed to reach port under her own steam; of the Armenia, which, though torpedoed, was saved through the courage and resources of its captain, crew and armed guard; of the Navajo, the Mongolia, the Petroville and a dozen others are notable enough to be recorded in the naval history of the time.

SEES PLAY FIVE TIMES AND THEN REPRODUCES IT

Gay Zenola MacLaren to Demonstrate Power of Mimicry in Modern Play at Chautauqua.

The startling power of mimicry possessed by Gay Zenola MacLaren will be demonstrated when she appears here on the Redpath Chautauqua program. She has available a list of plays from which a modern and appropriate selection will be made.

Miss MacLaren's home is in New York City, so it is convenient for her to attend early performances of the great productions. She sees the plays interpreted by the best actors and in the leading playhouses. After witnessing the production from first to seven times she is able to reproduce not only the words of the story but the mannerisms and voices of the actors as well. She does not claim to originate the many characters she assumes, but bases her success on an ability to mimic. The knack of representing a certain character comes to her suddenly, probably after attempting for many days to strike the proper trail. The words of the play are a minor consideration, for when once she has secured the proper mannerisms of an actor the words come naturally.

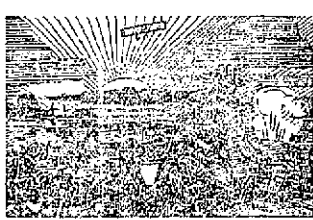

German "Kultur."

C. Journele, a French writer, discusses in the Atlantic Monthly of "Prussian Manners," and though he never grows emotional or is otherwise than calm and moderate in expression, he sets forth a most damning picture. After showing how unquenchable French repatriates are after months of prison brutality he gives it as his belief that the German tyrant does not consist simply in an exorbitant application of the dogma of might. "It has special modifications, peculiar to the race, which make it even more painful if that is possible. It is not inspired solely by the systematic despotism and immorality cynically adopted by Germany; it is not a pure, undiluted application of any doctrine; it springs from a genuine lack of morality, and from a well-spring of vicious animalism, which psychologists have so often detected in the German blood."

"Not," he adds, "that I am so foolish as to hold that all Germans are low, malignant, and brutal; but it can be said without hesitation that such is, generally speaking, their psychological type, more or less emphasized; that such are their racial characteristics, as appears from innumerable facts gathered from the lips of our repatriates of every locality."

Electrons and Atoms.

Atoms are minute particles of matter, each about one-three-hundredth part of an inch in diameter. They are so small that if the earth were made up of baseballs it would be a fair model of a drop of water made up of atoms. The electron is smaller still. It has a diameter of about one-hundredth of an atom, so that if an atom were represented by a sphere 100 yards in diameter the electron would be about the size of a pin's head. It has been said that the electrons which form an atom can be compared to a swarm of gnats in a cathedral or other large building. As atoms are made up of electrons, so molecules are made up of atoms.

OVER THE TOP

Snap—Vigor—Energy—Bravery—and nerves of steel are required to go "over the top" on the fighting front. Good red blood and an active liver are needed to face the enemy. Not only is this true of the soldiers at the front, but one folk must have energy to fight the battle of life, right here at home. It is not on the battlefield alone that this war is being fought. It is waged in the factory, in the workshop, on the farm, and in the home, as truly as in the trenches. The pale-cheeked woman at home, as well as the workman in the shop, feels that lack of snap and energy which rich, red blood should bring. They both need iron in their blood.

The blood lacks tone—perhaps the red-blood corpuscles are lacking. If one lacks the energy to walk in the open, or to work at his or her desk, or to do his best in the office, it is because the blood is out of tone. A tablet which has just the right combination of iron and herbal extracts to bring "pop," vim, vitality and vigor to you. This latest product, which the best science and skill could devise, called "Iron-tic," is the result of the experiments of a dozen medical men associated with Doctor Pierce at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y. If you want to try these "Iron-tic" tablets, send 10c. to the above address for trial pkg., but almost every druggist can sell you Doctor Pierce's Iron-tic Tablets at sixty cents a box. They make pure rich-red blood. Start to-day.

BEFORE THEY HOLLER PEACE!

Old Gentleman Thinks There Should Be Something Definite Happen to Treacherous Huns.

"Peace!" said my old man, "you make me tired."

Some excited gent he was, and planked his lunch pail down on the bottom step and then himself beside it.

"Did I ever tell you about the German I had in my reach house when I first went to work in the gas house?"

"Search me!" said I. "You've had so many reach houses it'd take a chartered accountant to keep track of them."

"Well, this round-headed Prussian starts a Donnybrook—"

"He?" I asks. "He did?"

"Well, somebody did! Anyway we got to locking horns, and I went to the store and a far that shuk the gas tank. Like all Germans he was a dirty fighter, so he was, and got me thumbed in his ugly mouth, and that made me mad, and I trumpeted him and me knee, and—well, he hollered peace, so he did. So I tuk me leg out of his stomach, and me finger out of his eye, and got up on me foot, and reached over and gave him a hand up, and he felched me a belt with a piece of scumfin' that told me the boots for quite a spell, and kept your mother busy putting pointers on my busted head."

"That's that got to do with the war?" I asks.

"Well, th' Germans is hollerin' 'Peace' ain't they, and Uncle Sam is, maybe, good-natured enough to give th' bloody Huns a rest, and thin, he gets smashed with a scumfin'. No, sir, he finished, as he gathered up his lunch pail and started into the back door. 'Th' next Prussian I sit, it was who went to bed with pointers, so he did, and I want to work th' next mornin'! Dye think I'm goin' without me can o' beer to buy th'ir stumps, and thin have th' war and that war? Not much, he jabers; we've got to lick 'em first, and then they can holler all th' 'peace' they want."—Edward S. Pillsworth of The Vigilantes.

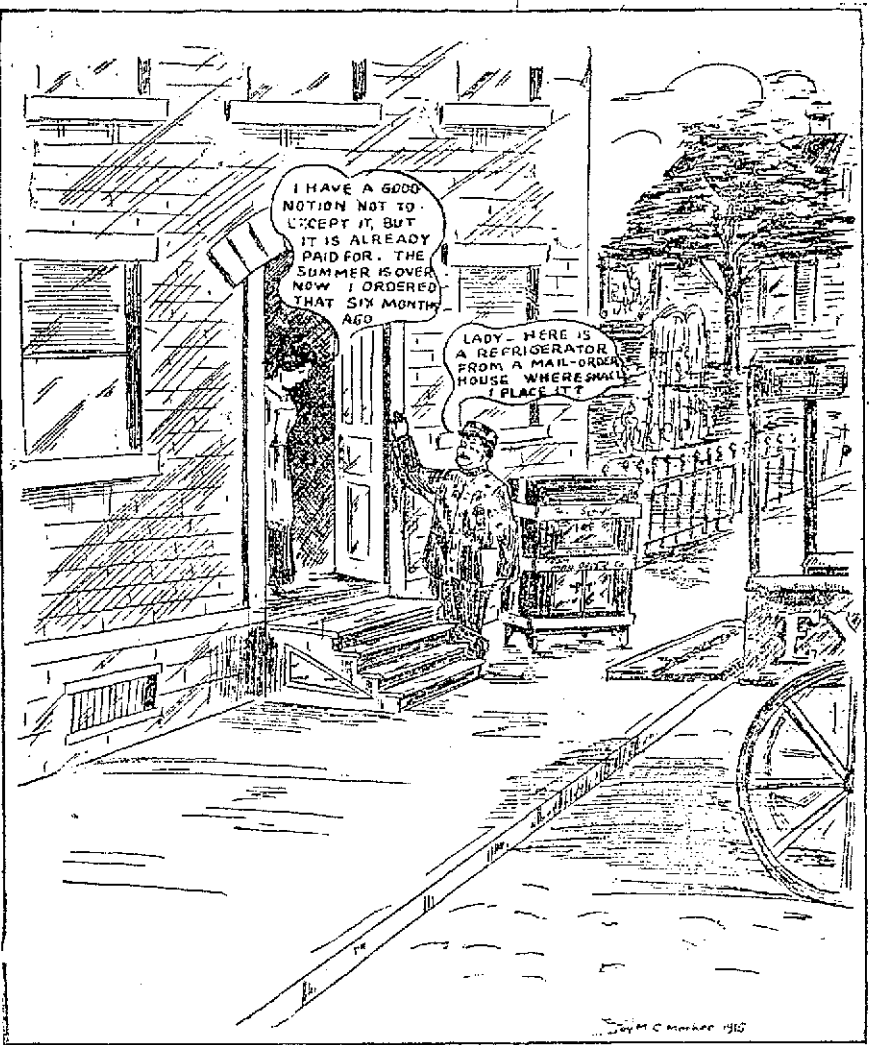

No Back Door.

A crowded elevator stopped with a shudder at the ninth floor of one of the large office buildings in the city. The operator called "Out nine!" No one volunteered to follow his suggestion, however, and a crowd was waiting to get on. "Step back in the car, please," said the operator as the crowd on nine started to push its way in. When all but one had squeezed in, and the operator had repeated his request, a small boy piped up in a compressed-sounding voice, "Say, mister, there ain't no back door to this car."

Might Be Right Plan.

Many collegians have been signed by the Cardinals. Perhaps Hickey expects to win the pennant by degrees.

You should take a thorough, purifying, cleansing laxative once each month. Decay matter in the stomach and bowels generates poisons that go to every part of your body unless removed. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea cleans, purifies the stomach and bowels.—Connellsville Drug Co.—Adv.

HOW PATIENCE AND MONEY ARE LOST

This woman worried through a whole season anticipating the arrival of a badly needed household necessity, lost many nights of sleep fearing that the family provisions would spoil and then, when the article was not necessary, the express man comes to the door with the long-expected shipment. Throughout the months that have elapsed since the money was forwarded the mail order concern has had the use of her money, have probably kept on multiplying it and thus the money that rightfully belonged in the home community is doubling itself for one of the town-wrecking business houses probably hundreds of miles away. The home dealer is always ready to fill your wants when the want is most urgent; his deliveries are prompt and the community shares in the distribution of his profits.

DRAFT OF MEN FROM 18 TO 45 NOW PROBABLE

Secretary Baker is Won Over to Plan of General Crowder.

WILSON WILL APPROVE

Military Authorities Agree That It is Necessary to Place Army of Five Millions in Field in Order to Make Victory Over Hun Early and Certain

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The draft age limits will be extended, probably 18 to 45. Secretary of War Baker has been persuaded that this step is necessary. He announced that he will approve any change in the selective service act necessary to raise an army of the required size.

American and allied military leaders now are convinced that the United States must place an army of at least 5,000,000 men in the field, if victory is to be won. This will be possible with the proposed extension of the age limits.

Available fighting men under the present age limits are expected to be exhausted about January 1.

The policy of the war department is not to go into Class 2 until Class 1 has been exhausted in all states.

This condition would compel an early invasion of Class 2 and possibly other deferred classifications unless the age limit were extended. Class 1 may be exhausted before January 1. Including June calls approximately 2,600,000 draft men have been called to the colors. The July calls will bring this number up to nearly 3,000,000.

With the 1,000,000 draft men under arms by the end of July and the 1,000,000 in the regular army and the National Guard, the strength of the American army by August 1 will be 3,000,000 men.

Another 1,000,000 men can be furnished by the draft system without necessitating an invasion of the deferred classes.

A registration of 10,683,719 between the ages of 21 and 45, both inclusive, is the estimate of General Crowder. From 18 to 20, both inclusive, he would expect to enroll 3,087,063.

Nearly six per cent of the men between 18 and 20 are not married; it is estimated, while 77 per cent of the men between 31 and 45 are believed to be married.

The number of single males between 31 and 45 is therefore expected to be 3,525,172, and between 18 and 20 there should be 2,561,891.

Figuring on a basis of the percentage of acceptances in the first registration, General Crowder would count on registration of men between 31 and 45 producing 1,330,273 fighting men; 18 to 21 registration should produce 1,157,317 fighting men.

The total number of fighting men expected, therefore, under the proposed age limits would be 2,537,255. With the present available total of 1,000,000 the extension of the draft ages to 18 and 45 would allow for an enlargement of the army to more than 3,500,000 without disturbing the industrial, agricultural or domestic conditions of the country.

MILLION AUSTRIANS

Are Thrown Against Allies on the Italian Battle Front.

PARIS, June 18.—The Austrian forces engaged on the Italian front comprise three-fourths of the whole Austrian army and the choicest troops under the command of Field Marshal Borovik. The number of men in an Austrian division is not exactly known but the number of divisions engaged would indicate that approximately 1,000,000 Austrian soldiers have been thrown into the battle.

Papers found on officers show that after forcing the passage of the Piave the first day's objective was the Treviso-Montebelluna railroad. In two days of fighting the enemy column had succeeded only in realizing the minimum assigned for the first day, according to the official note issued at Rome. Not one single Allied aviator has been lost during the Austrian offensive while 44 enemy machines have been brought down.

At the Hospital.
George Zahuranc, 17 years old, employed by the Washington Coal & Coke company at Star Junction, while at work yesterday in some manner caught his foot in a truck. He was brought to the Cottage State hospital where it was discovered that his foot was badly mangled and it was necessary to amputate a toe. John Stetz of Leisenring, who received treatment for a fractured femur, was discharged yesterday.

EAT SAUER KRAUT AS A WAR MEASURE, SAYS FOOD EXPERT

Otherwise Millions of Pounds of Cabbage Will Be Wasted This Year; It Is a Wholesome Product.

Millions of pounds of cabbage will be wasted and production discouraged if the derivation of the term sauer kraut, which is really Dutch, not German, as many persons believe, is permitted to engender prejudice. The spread of such prejudice in the last few weeks has caused Food Administrator Hoover to take official notice in a bulletin deploring agitation against sauer kraut.

"Sauer kraut is a good American product, regardless of the name it bears," says Dr. R. J. H. DeLoach, agricultural expert with Armour & Company, "and it behooves Americans to eat more of it than they have in the past, not only to prevent a possible waste of millions of pounds already packed but also to cause greater quantities than ever to be grown and packed this summer and fall. Sauer kraut is not needed by our allies but nearly everything else in the food line is, and the more kraut we eat the more we will have of other foods to send abroad."

"Under normal conditions the average American eats about two pounds of kraut a year. We should be eating a great deal more because the product is wholesome and so rich in mineral salts that it is very beneficial to the digestion. Recognition of its value has caused it to be made a part of the rations of our soldiers and sailors."

"Cabbages can be grown in great quantities but only for a few months in the year and they are not easily kept fresh. Turning them into sauer kraut is the logical way to distribute them over the seasons. As the demand for kraut increases, production will keep pace and the consumers will benefit in health while aiding the nation to meet the demands of our allies for more food."

LET THIS CREAM CURE YOUR PIMPLES

For several weeks past A. A. Clarke has done a big business in selling his skin cream, the skin healer that has won so many friends in Conneltsville.

It has been found to heal not only all minor skin troubles, such as pimples, blackheads, herpes, acne, scaly scalp, complexion blemishes, itching feet, piles, etc., but also the worst sores, ulcers, or even cancerous eczema and salt rheum. There is yet to be found any form of wound or disease affecting the skin or mucous membrane that it does not help, and its action is so quick that those who try it are simply delighted with it right from the start.

In spite of its unusual curative powers, the price is trifling. To convince every one of its merits, A. A. Clarke will sell a liberal sized jar for 35c. And remember that if you do not think it does what it claims, you can get your money back. You certainly can afford to try it on this plan. A. A. Clarke—Adv.
